FINANCE AND TRADE.

THE BANKS yesterlay, as on the day THE BANKS JESUTARY, as on the day before, had a very doil business. Exchange was coming in liberally, but there were few applications for loans. Exchange quotes at discount buying on New York, selling at part demand same as New York; New Jesutary at his count to par, selling at 4 incoming a light part of the downward way in might be selling at 4 incoming a light present to pened at 10%, then feel to County banks are continually either obtaining currency or arranging with our city banks for dra'ts in the lumediate future, which solves that ctops are in full movement, But very little, if any, grain is carried in the country, and hence the domaind from thence means activity in sulpraents." The st. Louis Republican and the following particular: "in June, 1874, the outstanding legal tenders amounted to $3-2.000,000, and the national bank notes to $339.34,182 - making a total certained of $349.34,182 fare amounts have been reduced to: Leral-tenders $365,464.76; national bank notes, $22.255,551—total, $20,745.201. The decrease in the amount of entrency in circulation in two years, therefore, is $11,45.888. In addition to this there have been about $10,000.000 of fractional currency redeemed and replaced with an equal amount of either. It will be seen that the contraction of entrency is going on steadily, and thus pringing as neaver every

THE PRODUCE MARKET WAS again dull yesterday; arrivals of merchandise were alight and the demand moderate. Feed was stagnant in all its branches; some oats and ear-corn were all that were offering, but the ackcorn were all that were offering, but the asking prices were extravagan—5 or for corn in the shuck and in bulk, and 43 or only moderate samples of oars in bulk. The necessity of picking out the cotton prevents the country propie sending in their other products, and the war news has raised prices, but there are bounds to what peopie will pay, while there appears to be none as to what will be asked. The St. Louis Republican, of Wednesday, has the following in reference to the depth of the Mississippi river in the vicinity of New Madrit, Missouri: "Messis. George B Clark, Otto Kochiltzsy and two sons of the latter, attached to the engineering force of the Little River Valley and Arkansas railroad company, while a' New Madrid a few days ago, measured the depth of the channel of the river at that place. They found the depth of water in front of Morrison's landing to be eighty feet. From there down the channel eighty feet. From there down the channel eighty feet. From there down the channel deepens uniformly, to St. John's bayon, where it is one hundred and four feet deep. The greatest depth found was opposite Main stree in New Madrid, one hundred and eight feet from that point it decreased to an uniform depth of eighty feet as far down as measurement was extended. All the measurements were from high-water mark."
